

Three Nooks Farm Update – 6th December 2013

Our engineers successfully completed the works on site last week and all of the faulty components have now been replaced. The equipment was removed from site on Monday.

The next phase of work will be the well testing. We need to obtain a Permit from the Environment Agency in advance of this work and for the last couple of months we have been working closely with them in order to establish the necessary permit requirements. The required paperwork has now been submitted and is currently being reviewed by the Environment Agency. A copy of the full submission is included on our website.

We anticipate that a decision on the application is due in January and we hope to commence the testing shortly afterwards.
