

7 October 2010

INFINIS APPOINTS HEAD OF HUMAN RESOURCES TO THE BOARD

Infinis plc (“Infinis”) announces the appointment of Paul Gregson, Head of Human Resources, to its board of directors with effect from 4 October 2010. Mr Gregson has been Infinis’ Head of Human Resources since November 2006.

The Infinis group of companies is one of the UK’s largest generators of renewable power and is owned by Terra Firma. It delivers about 10% of the UK’s renewable power through its landfill gas (LFG), onshore wind farm and hydro generation activities and approximately 0.7% of the UK’s total electricity consumption. Its strong overall renewables market position is closely linked to its leadership position in the UK landfill gas-to-electricity market where it has a share of approximately 41%.

Infinis is headquartered in Northampton and currently employs approximately 370 people. It has a total of 137 generating sites across the UK (124 LFG sites, 3 onshore wind farms and 10 hydro sites).

Infinis has a total installed renewable generation capacity of 438MW split between its LFG (346MW), onshore wind (75MW) and hydro (17MW) operating plants. A pure business-to-business operator, it sells all its output to a handful of licensed off-takers. Infinis currently also has an onshore wind development pipeline of 88MW consented, 250MW at various stages of planning and development and 22MW under construction.

For further information

Andrew Dowler

07887 607744

Notes to editors:

Paul qualified as a member of the Chartered Institute of Personnel & Development in 1988 whilst employed at the Central Electricity Generating Board. Following a period in a senior HR role within General Electric – GE Capital (UK), Paul joined Saint-Gobain Building Distribution in 2000, where he occupied a role as Head of Human Resources for the Jewson group until joining Infinis in November 2006.